Great Battle Going On.

There is positive information in the city that a great battle is raging to-day upon the soil of Pennsylvania, not far from Gettysburg. We have no particulars upon which to base an opinion as to the result. God grant that victory may perch upon our standard!

OBITUARY.

In the death of Major General John F. Reynolds we deplore the loss of one of the bravest, ablest and most devoted of our general officers. The breaking out of the rebellion found him on the Pacific coast, and on his return to the States he was at once commissioned a brigadier general and assigned to duty with the Army of the Potomac. He first commanded a brigade in the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, and participated in several of the battles before Richmond, in one of which he was taken prisoner. When exchanged, he was put in command of the corps, and served with it until transferred, at the request of Governor Curtin, to command the forces raised last fall by Pennsylvania to protect her against invasion.

His active co-operation in the expulsion of General Lee from Maryland, and, upon the disbandment of the State troops, returned to the Army of the Potomac. He specially became a corps commander, was wounded, and subsequently was given command of one of the grand divisions of the army. He participated in both the movements upon Fredericksburg, and in the operations of last fall before Washington, and in every position faithfully discharged his duty.

He was heroically brave and generous, cool in action, alert in movement, and quick in perception. He was thoroughly manly and noble—among the finest of soldierly characters developed by the war. Leading the advance, he was yesterday struck down, mortally wounded. He died as he would have chosen to die, battling for his country's unity and life. The war has not had a nobler victim. Would that he had been spared to witness the overthrow of the accursed rebellion, to which he owes his death.

Preparations of the Rebels to Escape Across the River.

OPPOSITE VICKSBURG, JUNE 25.—A messenger was captured with the following verbal message from Pemberton to Johnston: "We can hold out ten days, if not sooner relieved or obliged to surrender."

A letter from General Withers to his wife speaks of a probability of his going North, and of a speedy exchange; one from W. L. Smith speaks despairingly; and another gives a list of fifty-four killed and wounded in an Alabama regiment. As some letters bear marks of being intended for our eyes, they are not implicitly believed; but they furnish concurrent testimony to sustain the story of general disasters.

SECOND DISPATCH.

CAIRO, July 1.—The steamer Belle of Memphis brings Vicksburg dates of the 26th ult. The recent battle in Grant's rear is said to have been severe, but no particulars have been received. No doubt the rebels have been making preparations to cross the river and escape into Louisiana, as quite a number of skiffs and flat-boats have been discovered.

The Twentieth, Thirtieth, and Forty-fifth Illinois regiments are among those who rushed into the breach made in front of the mine in Gen. Logan's front on the 25th. This fort is on the highest ground in the vicinity, and completely commands most of the rebel works. Our troops are mounting thirty-two pounder Parrots and nine-inch Dahlgrens.

BATTLE AT CARLISLE.

THE REBELS ATTACK THE TOWN.

THEY FALL BACK.

Surrender of the Town Demanded and Refused.

Great Excitement Among the Citizens.

The Gasworks and Barracks Burned.

HARRISBURG, July 1.—The last rebel left Carlisle yesterday morning, and the town was occupied by a portion of our forces under Gen. Smith. About 5 o'clock the rebel cavalry appeared in large force, having come in on the York road.

A rebel officer sent in a flag of truce to Gen. Smith, demanding the surrender of the town, which was refused. On receiving Gen. Smith's reply, the enemy opened on the town with artillery, which was promptly replied to.

Firing continued at intervals until about ten o'clock, when the rebels fell back in the direction which they came. Before leaving, they burned the barracks, gas works and one dwelling. Many buildings suffered considerably from the rebel artillery. The court-house was struck several times.

When the enemy opened, the excitement among the citizens was very great. The women and children either fled or hid themselves in cellars.

Our loss was three killed. The rebel loss is not known.

After the enemy retired, they sent in another flag of truce notifying the citizens to leave, as they intended to renew the attack to-day.

This morning the enemy's pickets are in sight. Up to noon no news has been received of a renewal of the attack.

The inhabitants are leaving this morning. The barracks and gas works are located a short distance out of town which accounts for their being burned.

There is no news from any other quarter.

Valuable property belonging to the town is being removed to Harrisburg.

son Brown was not upon it; that of Hamilton Brown was.

Mr. Brent testified: Col. Larned came after me yesterday in a carriage, saw me, and asked me to go with him to his house. The child had light hair, she made to my house in the morning.

Questioned by Mr. Brent: I am not married; I am a widow of Twelfth and G streets. I have no interest whatever in this case, to procure witnesses or to obtain information.

Mr. Brent wished to know by what criteria she could tell the dates, to which she replied, by certain circumstances which were vividly impressed upon my memory.

Up this Mr. Brent asked what the circumstances were. Mr. Bradley objected to this question if it in anywise involved her character.

Mr. Brent thought it germane to the case, when Mr. Bradley referred to the Van Ness case, when a witness of Rhode Island was examined in the same manner, and Mr. Brent objected.

Witness continued. The question does not involve my character. I can tell because I removed the place of my residence about that time. Col. Larned always wore a high collar to muffle his face. He went to his lady's room at night; never spoke to Mrs. Woodson. His place of business was on the Avenue; always opened the door at Mrs. Larned's; never saw Mrs. Tillotson Brown at Larned's house. Didn't know Mrs. Stahl; never heard of her name.

A Mrs. Brown testified: I now live in this city. In the winter of 1861, I lived at Mrs. Gardner's; knew Mrs. Brown, the mother of Emily, when she lived at Mrs. Gardner's in 1864, generally known as Mrs. Reeve. Col. Larned was the only gentleman whom I knew to visit Mrs. Tillotson Brown. I saw Col. Larned several times, happening to be in the passage. Didn't know at that time that there was such a person in existence as Tillotson Brown. Had seen him since; did not look like the Colonel who once visited Mrs. Gardner's.

Next time witness saw Mrs. Tillotson Brown, was when she was living opposite her, on B street, in 1866. She had at that time a child from 15 to 20 months old; once in her house on B street; same person whom she saw at Mrs. Gardner's.

Mr. Brent questioned: Witness was never acquainted with Mr. Brown; he was pointed out. Saw him frequently on B street; and Mrs. Brown's knew him by sight in '65. She was then called Mrs. Brown. Visited Mrs. Brown in day time on one occasion. She saw Col. Larned coming out in the morning. She did not know Speaker White. Never saw Tillotson go in during the daytime. Knew his father, Jesse Brown. Lived at Mrs. Holliston's. Mr. T. F. Brown was medium in size. Resembled Marshall Brown, his brother. He lapsed a little, and had an impediment in his speech. Saw him going in the house with a high collar to his coat. No other man visited the room.

Prof. Halliwell testified: I lived in Alexandria and was partially pupil, partially or assistant teacher in the school of his uncle, Benjamin Halliwell. DeJ. Halliwell now lives in Indiana; I don't know where; he is moving from place to place. A book was handed by Mr. Bradley which was recognized by the witness as a record book kept at the school. The names of Marshall and Tillotson Brown are recorded in the book. The witness saw an entry of the departure of some of the pupils.

Question by Mr. Brent. Prof. Halliwell stated that the book was kept partly by himself and partially by his uncle Benjamin. The time of the arrivals of pupils was recorded in the book. The only entry of the witness saw of their departure.

Testimony by Mr. Holloway. He testified that he saw Mrs. Brown at the house of her mother, Mrs. Woodson, on the morning of the 28th inst.

He testified that he saw Mrs. Brown at the house of her mother, Mrs. Woodson, on the morning of the 28th inst.

General Meade's Victory.

The Rebels Routed.

Maj. Gen. John F. Reynolds Killed.

NOBLE WORDS!

WHENEVER THEY (THE REBELS) HAVE THE POWER, THEY DRIVE BEFORE THEM INTO THEIR HANDS THE SOUTHERN PEOPLE, AND THEY WOULD ALSO DRIVE US. TRUST THEM NOT. WE WERE THERE, AND THEY WOULD INVADE AND DESTROY US WITHOUT MERCY. ABSOLUTELY ASSURED OF THESE THINGS, I AM AMAZED THAT ANY ONE COULD THINK OF "PEACE ON ANY TERMS." HE WHO ESTABLISHES THE SOUTHERN PEOPLE AS FREE MEN, IS A SLAVE; HE WHO UTERES IT AT THIS TIME, MOREOVER, IS A TRAITOR TO HIS COUNTRY, WHO DESERVES THE SCORN AND CONTEMPT OF ALL HONORABLE MEN. —House of Representatives, to the General Assembly of Ohio, February, 1862.

Accident to Mrs. Lincoln.

We regret to announce that this forenoon while Mrs. Lincoln was riding from the Soldiers' Home in her carriage, the pole was accidentally broken, the horses took fright and ran away, smashing the vehicle badly and throwing Mrs. Lincoln out with great violence. She was quickly attended and conveyed to the Soldiers' Home, when the President and Dr. Stone were sent for. We do not learn the extent of the injury received by Mrs. Lincoln at the moment of going to press, but are glad to learn that no bones are broken. We shall be able to give further details in our next edition.

P. S.—Since the above was in type, we learn that Mrs. Lincoln escaped with a slight cut upon the forehead. When she discovered that the horses had become unmanageable she coolly leaped from the carriage and was thrown upon her face, inflicting the wound described. We are truly glad it was no worse.
